NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Fraud by the Mutilation of Treasury Notes.

Another Debate in the Senate on the Case of Gen. Stone.

Animated Discussion in the House Regarding Gen. Fremont.

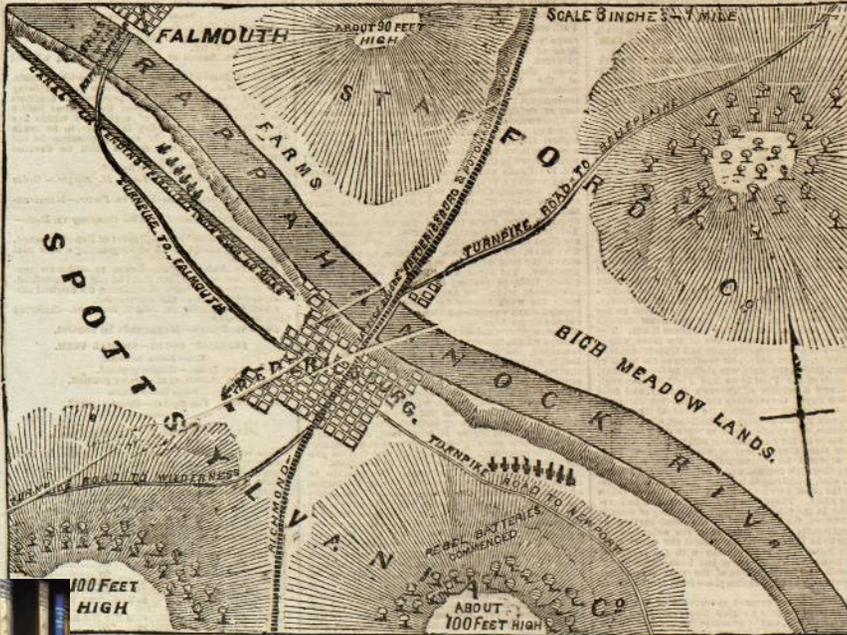

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES

Washington, Monday, April 21.

THE PRESIDENT AND MR. CAMERON'S ARREST.

The President sent a message to the House to-day covering a copy of correspondence between the Secretary of State and BENJAMIN H. CAMERON of Philadelphia, relative to the arrest in that city of SIMON CAMERON, late Secretary of War, at the suit of PIERRE BUTLER, for trespass, &c. of arms, assault and battery, and false imprisonment. Secretary SAWARD addressed a letter to the counsel of Mr. CAMERON, announcing that the President justifies the act of Mr.

THE MOVEMENT OF GEN. McDOWELL AGAINST FREDERICKSBURG.

FREDERICKSBURG, VIRGINIA.

On the south side of the Rappahannock River, fifty-six miles from Washington, and sixty-two from Richmond, is the city of Fredericksburg, Virginia. It is a compactly built; many of its buildings are of stone and brick. The public buildings are a court-house, jail, market-house, orphan asylum, one Episcopal, one Methodist, one Baptist and one Reformed Baptist Church. Its exports in cotton, grain, flour, tobacco and maize are $5,000,000 annually. Population, 5,000. It is surrounded on the south and east by hills averaging 100 feet in height, and the north bank being a valley, it forms an excellent natural place of defence.

When they reached the shore, up they rushed to the rifle pits. A glance at the fort showed it to be empty. A ditch at the left was found to be full of men. Our men then poured one deadly volley into them, and all fell who could. A second pit was found empty, and they stopped to load. But no reinforcements came, and they continued to fall back, trying to carry their dead and wounded; they reached the bog, when the rebels again filled the ditches they had left, and commenced a galling fire upon them. The water had been let out of the upper dam, and as it is a very low flat it had now two feet more water than when they went over. A number of the wounded could not get through, and fell exhausted to struggle in the mud; many stuck fast and were shot through the head, while many were killed and wounded before they reached the shelter of the woods.

Another Unpleasant Storm on the Peninsula.

The Siege Operations Progressing Favorably.

INCIDENTS OF THE INVESTMENT.

FORGERS MONROE, Sunday April 20. } vs BARTHOLOMEW, Monday, April 21. }
The weather, to-day, is very unpleasant. A cold rain storm, with a North wind, has set in.

guns, but have been repulsed by our pickets and driven back.

THE RECENT FIGHT AT LEE'S MILL.

The following account is from the Yorktown correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer:

Between Wind's Mill and Lee's Mill, the rebels had built a fort and mounted several guns upon it to cover the road leading to Lee's Mill, which runs in front of it, about 1,200 yards. In front of the fort was a bog, about 250 feet wide, and above it a large dam; between the bog and road was an open field of about forty acres, in the centre of which were two fine houses, but which were burned by them a week ago last Sabbath; nothing now remains but the chimneys; below the bog is the dam used by Wind's mill.

About 9 o'clock, M., Merr's battery opened upon the rebel fort from the woods in front; the first fire was a shell, and exploded right over their fort; the rebels soon returned the fire, and their first shell exploded in front of gun No. 1, killing and wounding all the men but one, and killing one horse; their position was then changed, and the whole set of guns played upon them at a distance of a little over one thousand yards between the two batteries. The rebels fired six guns, and threw three Hotchkiss shells from 6, 12 and 24-pounders, and shot from a 10-pounder Parrott gun. In about an hour we had disabled three of their guns, and they quit firing. Merr fired for half an hour into the woods, and then quit. Not a man was to be seen in front of their works, and the infantry in the rear of our battery gave three loud cheers for the Union, that would have been heard for miles had not the dense woods all around cut off the sound. We were now victorious; we had driven them from their battery, had silenced half their guns, and only lost seven men.

Merr's Battery was now ordered up (at 4 P. M.) to the centre of the field and within five hundred yards of the fort. The woods were soon filled with gray-coated rebels, and Merr opened with shells; they replied with two pieces from an upper fort in the edge of the woods, and their shells all went over the side of the fort, and fell at our feet. A man of their guns, they fell flat on the ground; and when the shell exploded, at it they went, and fired canister and shell. The color-bearer, JAMES MILLER, was mounted, and a shell exploding near him, a piece cut off his side open, and he fell to the ground. Keeping the colors up, he begged of the men to help him up on his horse--then he could keep the flag flying. His wound is not fatal.

In half an hour the infantry had disappeared, and the guns ceased firing. Our artillery were now aided by Artax's and Wrenshaw's Batteries, who played on their flanks. Again we had triumphed. Not a man killed. The artillery did the work. The rebel shot and shell plowed up the field in our rear, and tore through the woods at a fearful rate. One pine tree, ten feet in diameter, was cut nearly in two, a shot going exactly through it. The Vermont Fourth and Fifth were deployed down on our right, through the woods; the Third and Sixth on our left, and were safe, at a distance of from five to eight hundred yards from their line of earthworks. The artillery continued to play into the woods. No rebels were visible, and no reply was made to us by them. Now for a piece of strategy.

At 4 P. M., the 4th D. of the Third Vermont, were ordered to charge bayonets on the left, or on their right rifle pits. Down out of the woods they came, marched through the bog, some two hundred strong, fifty or three hundred feet wide; all sank from their knees to their waists in mud and water, but on they went.

When they reached the shore, up they rushed to the rifle pits. A glance at the fort showed it to be empty. A ditch at the left was found to be full of men. Our men then poured one deadly volley into them, and all fell who could. A second pit was found empty, and they stopped to load. But no reinforcements came, and they continued to fall back, trying to carry their dead and wounded; they reached the bog, when the rebels again filled the ditches they had left, and commenced a galling fire upon them. The water had been let out of the upper dam, and as it is a very low flat it had now two feet more water than when they went over. A number of the wounded could not get through, and fell exhausted to struggle in the mud; many stuck fast and were shot through the head, while many were killed and wounded before they reached the shelter of the woods.

PROGRESS OF THE SIEGE.

Correspondence of the Baltimore American.
FORGERS MONROE, Saturday, April 19, 1862.
The weather still continues bright and beautiful, with a warm sun, and even at night all is calm and pleasant. For the siege operations at Yorktown, the past days have been admirably quiet, and the work already done is said to be astonishing. Immense earthworks commanding the rebel fortifications have been built and guns mounted, in the face of a constant cannonade from the enemy, while the rebels have been picked off by many of the gunners, as a means of protecting the working parties.

Mr. FISHER stated that a large number of similar petitions had been signed in Syracuse, but it was supposed that no opportunity would be afforded to present them.

The petition was referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

BILLS PASSED.

United States Civil War Service Records of Union Soldiers, 1864-1866

Union service records of Confederate prisoners of war who enlisted and served in the 1st- 6th U.S. Volunteer Infantry Regiments. The records include a jacket-envelope for each soldier, labeled with his name, his rank, and the unit in which he served. For each military unit the service records are arranged alphabetically by the soldier's surname. The Military Unit field may also display the surname range (A-G) as found on the microfilm. This collection is a part of RG 94, Records of the Adjutant General's Office, 1780's-1917 and is National Archive Microfilm Publication M1017. Index courtesy of Fold3.

Soldiers and Sailors Database

The Civil War Soldiers and Sailors System (CWSS) is a database containing information about the men who served in the Union and Confederate armies during the Civil War. Other information on the site includes histories of Union and Confederate regiments, links to descriptions of significant battles, and selected lists of prisoner-of-war records and cemetery records, which will be amended over time. The CWSS is a cooperative effort between the National Park Service and several public and private partners whose goal is to increase Americans' understanding of this decisive era in American history by making information about it widely accessible.

OVERVIEW BROWSE DESCRIPTION

Mathew B Brady and many of the decade's best photographers created the photographs in this collection. There are detailed portraits of notable men of the era, as well as photos of soldiers, living and dead, battlefields, scarred landscapes, and cities burned and bombed by invading troops. They portray the horrors of war and images of life in camp. They represent photojournalism in its infancy and present us with real-life interpretations of our nation at war with itself.

THE CABINET.

Friday Morning, - - - April 19, 1861.

Civil War COMMENCED!

The dark cloud which has long hung over our political horizon has at length culminated in open War and Sumter has already fallen into the hands of the Confederate Powers. That our readers may have an intelligent understanding of the whole matter, we give the correspondence by telegraph which preceded the attack of the forts on Sumter. They were as follows:

Official Correspondence Preceding Hostilities.

CHARLESTON, April 12.—The following is the telegraphic correspondence between the War Department at Montgomery and General Beauregard, immediately preceding hostilities. The correspondence grew out of the formal notification by the but are held in reserve for the present, the force already on the island being ample. People are also arriving every moment on horseback and every other conveyance. Within an area of fifty miles, where the thunder of the artillery can be heard, the scene is magnificently terrible.

CHARLESTON, Friday, April 12—6 P. M.

Capt. R. S. Parker brings dispatches from the Floating Battery, stating that, up to this time, only two have been wounded on Sullivan's Island. He had to row through Major Anderson's warmest fire in a small boat.

Senator Wigfall in same manner bore dispatches to Morris Island, through the fire from Fort Sumter.

Senator Chestnut, another member of the staff of Gen. Beauregard, fired a gun, by way of amusement, from Mount Pleasant, which made a large hole in the parapet.

Quite a number have been struck by spent pieces of shell and knocked down, but none hurt seriously. Many fragments of these missiles are already circulating in the city.

Three ships are visible in the offing, and it is believed an attempt will be made to-night to throw re-enforcements into Fort Sumter in small boats.

There have been two rain storms during the day, but without effect upon the battle.

Everybody is in a ferment. Some of those fighting are stripped to the waist.

opposite Fort Moutrie is honeycombed extensively, as it is that opposite the floating battery.

Fort Moutrie is badly damaged. The officers' quarters and barracks are torn to pieces. The frame houses on the Island are riddled with shot in many instances, and whole sides of houses are torn out.

The fire in Fort Sumter was put out, but recaptured three times during the day. Dr. Crawford, Major Anderson's surgeon, is slightly wounded in the face. None of the South Carolinians were injured.

Major Anderson and all his officers and men are in Fort Sumter. I approached near enough to the walls to see him, and hear him bid his visitors adieu.

Boats were sent to-night to officially notify the fleet at the bar that Major Anderson had surrendered. It is not known when the South Carolinians will occupy Fort Sumter, or what will be done with the vanquished. Every one is satisfied with the victory, and happy that has been no bloodshed. After the surrender, the bells of the city were rung and cannon fired.

CHARLESTON, April 14—Morning. Negotiations were completed last night, and Major Anderson, with his command, will evacuate Fort Sumter this morning, and embark on board the war vessels off the bar.

Five of Major Anderson's men were wounded. The Steamer Isabel will take Gen. Beauregard to Fort Sumter, which will be turned over by quest. The people are equally indignant and say it is the most cowardly act ever perpetrated. They might have even made the attempt to aid him.

In contrast with this, an old slave passed through the hottest fire, with a sloop load of provisions on Friday evening, and came safely to the city. Somebody told him he would be killed in the attempt. 'Can't help that' said he, 'must go to de town to-night. If anybody hurt dis child or dis boat, massa see him about it shuah.' His sloop received four shots.

It is reported here that Major Anderson sent in his resignation, to take effect on the inauguration of the Lincoln government, but no notice was taken of it.

The news received from Washington to-night states that Major Anderson is strongly expected of treachery. The idea is preposterous.

The fort is burned to a mere shell; not a particle of woodwork can be found. The guns on one side of the parapet are entirely dismounted, others split, while the gun carriages are knocked into splinters.

Major Anderson says the accuracy of the firing surprised him, and that if he had had two hundred more men, one half would have been killed for want of suitable protection.

When Col. Chestnut, aid of Gen. Beauregard, went to offer assistance, after the fire, he says the fort was like an oven, and he could hardly breathe. It was so hot that Major Anderson re-

FATAL ACCIDENT TO A SOLDIER. Mr. Rufus A. Peck, of Stoughton, a private in Company I, of the "Webster Regiment," was accidentally killed at the camp near Darnestown on the 22d day of September. Having finished some duty in blacksmithing, he went out to assist in killing some cattle; he was about returning when a beam which sustained two slaughtered cattle broke as they were lifting a third. It fell upon his head. He immediately became insensible and died the same evening.

The New-York Times.

VOL. XI—NO. 3393,

NEW-YORK, FRIDAY, AUGUST 8, 1862.

FROM GEN. M'CLELLAN'S ARMY.

Our Forces Still in Possession of Malvern Hill.

THE POSITION TO BE RETAINED.

Reported Intention of the Rebels to Retake it.

Heavy Reinforcements Sent to Gen. Hooker.

THE GUNBOATS GONE UP THE RIVER.

Arrival of Three Thousand Exchanged Prisoners.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, THURSDAY, AUG. 7, 1862.
At Malvern Hill everything was quiet during

From an exterior line at Berkley to Malvern Hill it is five miles by a direct road.

Four stragglers, belonging to Saxton's Division while roaming in the woods, came across six mounted rebel cavalry, whom the stragglers took prisoners. They disarmed them, made them dismount, and rode their horses into camp.

Gen. McClellan and staff came up to Malvern Hill in the afternoon, and remained all night. Cox's Division was sent up to reinforce Hooker during the night. It is rumored another division will be sent up this morning. We intend to permanently hold Malvern Hill.

The rebel rams have disappeared up James River. Our gunboats went up some distance beyond Malvern Hill yesterday, and shelled a rebel encampment, but with what result is not yet known.

I have just ascertained that our loss yesterday was six or seven killed and twenty-four wounded.

WHIT.

OUR FORTRESS MONROE CORRESPONDENCE.

Excitement at Fortress Monroe—Returned Union Prisoners—What They Say of Richmond—Treason and Crimoline—A Scotch Parson—Affairs at Nassau—British "Neutrality."

Old Point, Wednesday, Aug. 6, 1862.

The reports brought by the James River mail boat yesterday—to the effect that three whole divisions of our army had actually engaged the enemy,—that firing was still going on when the boat left, and that we had taken possession of Malvern Hill—have naturally created no little stir here, and the arrival been kept alive till now. Britannia is the she-wolf from which, Romulus and Remus-like, they have got nourishment, and the port of Nassau is the dug through which they have been drawing sustenance. If this be "neutrality," the sooner we put a stop to it the better.

Four o'clock, P. M.—The James River boat is just in and, from all we can gather, the affair of Sunday partook more of the character of a skirmish than a battle. The report which now reaches us is that we lost about one hundred in killed, wounded and missing, while the rebels had a large number killed, and we have taken over one hundred as prisoners. It is so far a success on our side as we have driven them back, and got possession of Malvern Hill. Up to the time the boat left there was no rumor of any further engagements. NEMO.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.

Fortress Monroe, Wednesday, Aug. 6. The 3,000 rebel prisoners from Fort Warren and Fort Delaware, went up the river from Harrison's Landing the night before last. A flag of truce boat accompanied them, which returned last evening, and reports that the exchange is being made satisfactorily, and that the same number of Union prisoners from Richmond may be expected down the river to-day or to-morrow, and that the requirements of the Federal Government, in regard to the exchange, has been strictly complied with, which is understood to mean the release of Col. Corcoran and other Union Officers. Col. GAMBLE, of the Eighth Illinois, is among the wounded. Other names of the killed and wounded we have not yet been able to obtain.

The mail steamer to Harrison's Landing, are conveyed by gunboats. A list of the sick and wounded may be expected to-morrow, from returned Richmond prisoners.

word of it. I don't believe there is a single white resident within miles and miles of us who is at heart our friend, or friendly to our cause. They talk to us in an apparently friendly way, wherever we appear in force. They regret the war. I have no doubt those who have been foraged on do. They wish matters could be settled "somehow." But how would they have them settled? By crushing out the rebellion, and breaking up the Confederate Government? Oh no, indeed. They would not lift a finger in that direction, nor give us a word of information which could be of service to us. We have yet to meet the first white man in this section who will acknowledge that he has seen or even heard anything of the movements of the rebel forces. Families living within pop-gun distance of where the enemy's pickets have been stationed during the past ten days, and who have, doubtless, fed them, ask us, with well-assumed ignorance, if we think there is any of the enemy near, and whether we think there is any "danger" of Jackson's returning with a large force. Innocent creatures! The army has recently learned a new and very effective way of answering such questions. They do it on the good old Connecticut plan, namely, by asking others, such as—How much grain have you got, and where is it? Where are the nearest hay-stacks or grass-fields? How are you off for beef, mutton, hams and bacon? In connection with these and other questions of a similar character, sometimes in relation to young pigs, turkeys, chickens, &c., these rebel residents are generally vouchsafed the information that it is somewhat generally believed in the army that new potatoes and several other vegetables are in season. That's the way we talk in the army. The uniform answer to the above questions is, that all they had has been taken from them, first by the Confederate, and then by the Union they were flying, too, and finally escaped. I point to Orange we saw nothing more enemy. We entered the town with a port force, the advance being Col. DeFossar's F York Cavalry, while two companies of Vermont were sent round to the right in order position on the other side. Dividing and through the town through the main and an parallel street, (if any two things here can parallel to each other,) we had reached the and outermost edge of the town before com the enemy. There our advance of the F York Cavalry was fired upon, Gen. CAW Col. DeFossar being immediately in the re advance, leading the main force. The ene proved, consisted of about one hundred an fantry and dismounted cavalry, with rifles, were immediately reinforced by about four cavalry. The fight here was continued to period briskly, and with considerable effect sides. At length a movement of the enemy our force to move in the direction of the rive rebels taking it for a retreat, returned and fol till upon the edge of the town looking toward per, when the Vermont Cavalry, having rea enemy's rear, and our advance getting the town, and in range, charged upon them, ran for the woods to the right of the place charge commenced, and disappeared. We t two prisoners. We lost in the engagement of the Fifth New-York Cavalry—who, unde of their intrepid Colonel, fought bravely, usually do—and twelve men wounded, of the portions of regiments of cavalry engaged.

The only fault I have heard found, or finding myself, with Gen. CRAWFORD, is that to see personally and generally SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

The Sanitary Commission, under special authority of the President of the United States, maintains an extensive system of agencies for securing the safe conveyance to, and distribution of, goods put in its charge for the sick and wounded at points where they are most wanted. It operates with equal care and generosity at all points—at New Orleans and at Washington, its distributions being governed by a comparison of the wants of the patients in all cases. To ascertain the relative character of these wants in a trustworthy manner, and to secure an equitable distribution and honest use of the goods distributed, besides the unpaid services of the members of the Commission, twenty physicians of high professional and moral character, and more than fifty lay agents, are employed, under pecuniary securities for responsible and efficient service. The cost of these arrangements has thus far been about 3 per centum of the value of the goods distributed. The Commission has not been able to obtain authentic evidence of losses, miscarriage, or misappropriations to the value of one dollar in ten thousand, of goods which have been once RECEIVED at its shipping depots. The following is a list of these depots, to which auxiliary societies, and all disposed to assistance, are invited to send their offerings:

SIDELIGHTS ON LINCOLN GIVEN

Memories of Emancipator Recalled by Angeleno

Civil War Veteran Tells of His Acquaintance

Birthday to be Observed by Many Organizations

"With malice toward none and charity for all" as the attribute of Abraham Lincoln which he most vividly recalls, Charles B. Wilson of 2338 Eleventh avenue, yesterday told of his acquaintance with the Great Emancipator during the Civil War days when bitterness and hatred bid fair to tear the nation asunder.

Mr. Wilson, then Lieut. Wilson, was on Gen. Whittell's staff at Richmond, Virginia, in 1863 when the end of the war came. Word was received that Lincoln was coming down from Washington and Wilson was detailed to meet him at the landing a few miles out of town and escort him into Richmond. The President was met, he said, by scores of freed slaves who fell on their knees before him with cries of "God bless Master Lincoln! God bless Master Lincoln!" And the short distance into the city took two hours to cover because at every step of the way he was shaking hands with the negroes with both his hands, his stove-pipe hat remaining on his head and his umbrella tucked under his arm.

When finally they reached the State House at Richmond, the President sat in Jefferson Davis' chair and discussed the disposition of the Confederate leaders with his generals.

"What shall we do with them, Mr. President?" he was asked, and Mr. Wilson tells how Lincoln sat there looking up at the ceiling and his only comment was: "Let 'em up easy, boys, let 'em up easy."

UNUSUALLY HORSEMAN

Earlier in the war when Wilson was one of Berden's sharpshooters, he related the story of their mutiny because they had been promised a certain kind of rifle to use, instead of which they were given old Enfield muskets. McClellan placed them all under arrest and then went to Lincoln with the story. Lincoln promptly mounted a horse and rode to their camp a short distance outside of Washington.

"With the stirrups too short and his long legs protruding at an ungainly angle, his stove-pipe hat and his umbrella under his arm, he made about as bad a figure on the horse as ever I saw," said Mr. Wilson. "But he came out to talk the matter over with the boys and he told McClellan that just as soon as the promised rifles could be procured we were to have them. He always was fair and he always talked straight from the shoulder. That's why everyone loved him."

Mr. Wilson, who will be 85 years of age this month, is a past senior vice-commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. He has been a resident of Los Angeles since 1895.

PLANS FOR CEREMONIES

Plans have been made throughout the city by various organizations for fitting ceremonies today to commemorate Lincoln's birthday.

Col. Edgar B. Piper, publisher of the Portland Oregonian, will be the chief speaker at the annual dinner of the Lincoln Club this evening.

The Daughters of the Union Veterans of the Civil War will have a program this afternoon at 2 o'clock in Fairmont Hall with the members of the Grand Army of the Republic as special guests.

The Department of Playground and Recreation of Los Angeles will conduct the formal opening of the Central Playground, 1377 East Twenty-second street, from 2 to 3 p.m.

The annual Antlers' ball will be this evening at 8.

At the morning session of the Los Angeles City Club held jointly with the League of Women Voters, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, founder of the National League of Women Voters, will speak on "Arbitration, Security and Disarmament." The luncheon and afternoon sessions will have as speakers Joseph Hynes Lockey of the University of California, on "Our Relations with Mexico," and Rev. Albert D. Stauffer on "The Reconstruction of Mexico."

At Pikesdale del Rey, starting at 2:30 p.m., there will be the Los Angeles Grand Prix road race with 100 rides to be run off by fourteen entries. The Association of City Planners of Los Angeles will hold a session at noon today at the Maryland Hotel in Pasadena after which the members will attend the dedication of the memorial flagpole at Orange Grove avenue and Colorado street, and the dedication of the new public library an hour later.

Schools throughout the city district celebrated Lincoln's birthday yesterday morning with student programs held in their own auditoriums. Los Angeles High School was the one exception as the pupils are planning a program for Washington's birthday and will celebrate that of the Emancipator at the same time.

Swedish residents of Los Angeles and vicinity will celebrate Lincoln's birthday this evening at the T. V. O. Hall, 924 West Washington street. Dr. Alvin Peterson is the chairman in charge of a program which will include musicians and entertainers from the Swedish colony. The program will be given in English.

LINCOLN LETTER OWNED BY LOCAL WOMAN

Coincident with the commemoration today of the 120th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, it was revealed that one of the few hitherto unpublished letters written by the great emancipator, is the property of a resident of Beverly Hills, Mrs. Ernest Chase of 721 Madoc Drive. The letter was written to Adm. Gen. Thomas toward the close of the Civil War in reference to the names of plantations owned by Mrs. Eugenia F. Bass, Mrs. Chase's aunt, who later became the Countess Berlinckii. At her death, about ten years ago, the letter, along with a collection of valuable antiques, many of which are said to be of outstanding historical value, became the property of Mrs. Chase.

Countess Berlinckii won fame in Washington, D. C., as a southern beauty during antebellum days, and after her marriage to the Italian nobleman, traveled extensively.

Mrs. Chase, before her marriage, lived abroad with her aunt for almost fifteen years.

ANCESTRY MOLDER OF LINCOLN'S CHARACTER

Prof. Walter Syreter Hertog, KSU historian, spoke yesterday before 2000 students of Belmont High School on "The Contribution of the State of Pennsylvania to the Greatness of Lincoln."

"The simplicity of his life, his calmness in the midst of the struggle of the Civil War, his gentleness and kindness toward friend and foe, were due to the spirit of self-compassion which was implanted in his heart by the simple teachings of his Quaker ancestors of Berks county, Pennsylvania," the speaker said.

Civil War Manuscripts (NEHGS)

About this collection

This collection contains selected manuscripts from the R. Stanton Avery Special Collections related to the American Civil War, 1861-1865. These collections include letters, diaries, military records, photographs, scrapbooks, and other materials produced by soldiers that provide details about their military experiences as they served during this war. There are similar documents produced by civilians from the home front with reports of local events, family news, rumors, and occasionally perceptions about the war, its causes, or consequences. Although most of our collections relate to Union soldiers and sailors, the Charles Carleton Coffin Collection includes material produced by soldiers and citizens of the Confederate States of America.

Highlights of the collection include:

- Account book of the 1st Kansan Colored Volunteer Regiment, 1864-1877 (Mss C 4911)
- Letters by soldiers who served during the American Civil War
- Diaries of Civil War soldiers
- Diary of Betsey Jennings Nixon, who ran a farm while her husband served in the Civil War

CHAPTER III.

ANTIETAM.

ON the fifteenth of September the Confederate army was divided: General Lee with Longstreet's and other divisions, including the troops of D. H. Hill just driven from South Mountain, had withdrawn into the angle formed by the Potomac River and the Antietam Creek, and lay upon the gently swelling hills in front of the village of Sharpsburg, waiting to concentrate his army and for his trains to cross the river into Virginia; General Jackson was distant from Lee about seventeen miles, at Harper's Ferry, gathering in his prisoners and spoils; for, at eight o'clock this morning, the garrison of Harper's Ferry, some ten thousand men, with abundant stores, had surrendered to Old Stonewall, who, by a masterly surround and occupation of the commanding heights, had compelled a surrender sooner than was thought possible. The officer who succeeded General Miles, who was killed at the moment of capitulation, was our afterwards friend and division commander, General Julius White, of Indiana. The news of this loss reached us next day, and caused almost as much depression as our victory had given elation.

The weather was fine and favorable for the movements of the armies; but the men of our regiment, after the two nights of broken rest and fatigues of battle, were happy to lie upon the field during the morning and let the warm sun thaw out limbs stiffened by the frosts of the previous night.

also dropped at once into the sleep of utter exhaustion — only the guards, and those kept awake by the pain of wounds, noticed the showers during the night.

The next morning was quiet for some time. We had now in the daylight an opportunity to note the losses of the regiment: Companies B, G and K were each represented only by a small group of men, their three or four stacks of arms seeming incredibly small. No field or staff officer appeared except Adjutant Wales, who had been struck by a ball but not wounded. He had left the hospital to join the regiment, with an Enfield rifle in hand, "to get a lick at the rebs," as he told Lieutenant Hudson. Assistant Surgeon Munsell had been wounded at the field hospital by a piece of shell. Of the line officers, Captains Bartlett and Niles were killed or mortally wounded at the rail fence; Captains King, Cheever and Oliver were disabled by wounds; Lieutenant Palmer was killed, and Lieutenants Hood, Hodges, Baldwin, Ingell, Brooks, Park and Blake were in the list of wounded. We had lost Captain Pratt and Lieutenants Williams and Hill at South Mountain. Only Captains Andrews and Lathrop and some half dozen lieutenants remained for duty with the regiment that morning.

Of the enlisted men the following were killed outright, or died of their wounds soon afterwards:

Company A — Sergeant Edward Peggren; Corporal Robert L. Lincoln.

Company B — Corporal William C. Colby; musician, Benjamin H. Rogers; privates, Joseph Cossar, David R. Hinckley, George W. Hodgdon, Jeremiah Long, Jr., Caleb C. Pike and Alphonso P. Reed.

Company C — Sergeant Henry Bowen; privates, George W. Alden, Joseph M. Goulding, John A. Lane, Joseph T. Pratt, Nathaniel I. Sweeney and Charles E. Dam.

Company D — Luther F. Read.

Company E — Privates, George Henry, Loren R. Brackett, Levi A. Brandage, Richard H. Cox, Philip Donnehoe, Joseph V. Sloan and James T. F. Smith.

Company F — Corporal Thomas Clay; privates, Ambrose Hinds, Charles E. M. Welch and Joseph Wood.

Company G — Privates, Stephen C. Adams, Herbert M. Drew, George W. Ellis, Henry O. George, Andrew J. Gile, William Hackett, Henry A. Hoyt, Harrison W. Sargent, Charles H. Tarbox, Watson S. Williams, Clarence H. Woodman, George A. Young and Augustus W. Dresser.

Company H — Privates, David W. Cushing, William Pike, Charles H. Robbins, William W. Smith and Nathan F. Winslow.

Company I — Corporal Edmund E. Hatton; privates, Ralph A. Jones, Charles Sulkoski, Nathan C. Treadwell, Patrick Walsh and Joseph P. White.

Company K — Sergeant Alfred C. Earle; Corporal Roscoe Bradley; privates, Dearborn S. Blake, Francis D. Brown, Henry H. Cleveland, Tappan S. Eaton, Leander W. Faunce, Horace Goodwin, Horatio B. Hackett, Charles Inhof, Joseph Lambert, James Rust, Ivori R. Stillings, Charles T. Wenborn, Ai B. Smith and Byley Lyford.

These were the sixty-nine heroes who laid down their lives for that terrible day's work. Company B was the color company. Companies G and K were subjected to a cross fire, which accounts for their great loss. There were also some one hundred and fifty men wounded, and some missing; making in all, at South Mountain and Antietam, of the officers and men seventy-eight dead and about one hundred and seventy-five wounded. Between two hundred and fifty and three hundred men only were for duty behind the stacks of arms on the eighteenth of September.

At first the regiment seemed wiped out, but many re-

Researching Civil War Ancestors 2021

Thank you for registering for the online course, Researching Civil War Ancestors!

The American Civil War was a defining moment for our young country, changing its trajectory forever. Nearly 3 million Americans served, resulting in approximately 750,000 casualties: everyone living in America at that time was affected in some way by the events of 1861 to 1865 and its long aftermath. Whether your ancestor wore blue or grey, this three-week online course led by Chief Genealogist and military history expert, David Allen Lambert will explore the records, resources, and strategies for tracing Civil War veterans in your family tree.

This course includes three 90-minute classes; exclusive access to handouts and recordings of each presentation; and in-depth Q&A sessions with the instructor.
