Ancestry.com

- Simply typing in a name is not always the best approach
- Understanding the records and information those records contain helps in knowing what information to supply
- Less is best
- Don't be afraid to look at records before and after the one that appears

What is indexed?

What is indexed?

- Different records asked different questions about our ancestors.
- Always a good idea to begin with a broad search and narrow down slowly.
- Pay attention to how the information that has been indexed is displayed.
