Census Alternatives: Tax Records

- Hearth Tax, 1691-1695
- Poll Tax. 1693-1699
- 18th century taxation

Hearth Tax 1691-1695

A tax of 14 shillings on every hearth in the kingdom by both landowners and tenants to raise money for the army, collected between 1691 and 1695. Hospitals and paupers were exempt from the tax. Hearth lists are arranged by county and then by parish or landed estate. This tax indicates the size of the house. While most county hearth lists contain lists of householders, some counties only give the total number of hearths and money collected in each parish or estate and a small number of counties do not have hearth lists.

Poll Tax (1694-1698)

Poll tax rolls, 1694-1698 Poll taxes were imposed in 1694, 1695 and twice in 1698 to pay off the debts and arrears of the army and navy. Payment was graduated at the rate of 6 shillings and upwards according to rank and means; only the poor and children under 16 were exempt. The collectors of the poll tax faced similar difficulties to those of the hearth tax and the records are incomplete. Arranged by county and parish, the amount of information provided varies from list to list.

1755 Population of Scotland

- 'An account of the number of people in Scotland in the year seventeen hundred and fifty-five by Alexander Webster, one of the ministers of Edinburgh' gives a total of 1,265,380 which is regarded as the most credible estimate of the Scottish population prior to 1801. (Webster's Account of the Population of Scotland in 1755)
- Ministers in 909 parishes were asked to provide information about:
 - the extent of their parish
 - the numbers of ministers, Roman Catholics and Protestants
 - the total number of inhabitants
 - the number of fighting men (aged between 18 and 56)
 - the ages of the inhabitants

Cart Tax (1785-1798)

- The owners of two, three, or four wheeled carts in Scotland were taxed. The tax fell upon mostly farmers and landowners in rural communities and those carters who in the villages.

Clock and Watch Tax (1797-1798)

- This tax list the names and number of clocks and watches the individual owned.

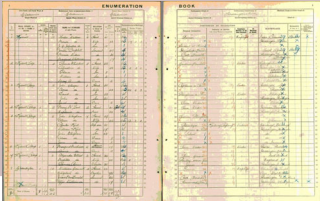

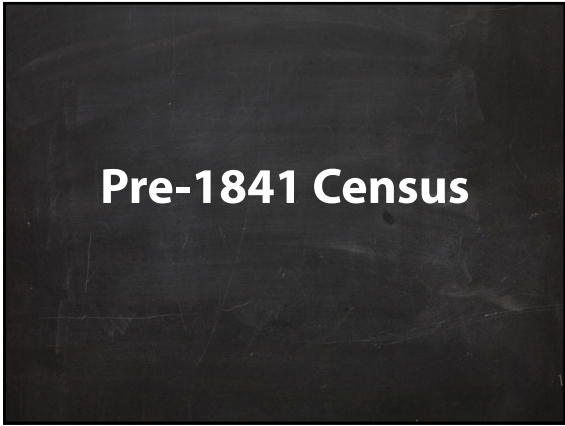

Overview

- Taken every ten years since 1801 except in 1941
- Censuses from 1841 to 1911 are available for public use

1801-1831

- ScotlandsPeople Centre holds transcripts and photocopies of the existing pre-1841 (1801-1831) census records and other early population records. See the Pre-1841 Census Records Research Guide on the National Records of Scotland website to learn more.

Pre 1841 Statistical Data

- 1801, 1811, 1821, 1831 Histpop - Online Historical Population Reports \(OHPR\)
- There are statistical charts available for the 1801, 1811, 1821, and 1831 Scotland censuses. The government gathered statistical data to see the economy of the people. The data listed occupations, housing, and populations for every parish in Scotland. It also noted changes from the previous census and reasons for those changes. See the Online Historical Population Reports wiki page to learn more.

1921 Scottish Census

- June 19, 1921 – population 4,882,497
- Available for purchase from ScotlandsPeople website

1921 Scottish Census

- New questions relating to the population of young people were introduced:
- The number of orphans living at each address were surveyed for the first time and asked whether the father, mother or both parents were deceased
- The number of dependent children.
- For the first time, a question was asked on whether a marriage had been 'dissolved by Divorce'.
- The question on infirmity was removed, but a new question asking whether individuals were eligible for benefit under the National Insurance Act 1911 was included.

1939 National Identity Register

- The Government carried out an enumeration of the population on 29 September 1939 just after the start of the Second World War. The Registrar General for Scotland, who had been making preparations for the 1941 census, was given responsibility for this task.

1939 Register

The image shows a small, rectangular document with handwritten text. The text is somewhat faded and difficult to read, but it appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a birth or death record. The document is set against a light background.
