

Friend or Foe: Researching Colonial Ancestors During the American Revolution

David Allen Lambert, Chief Genealogist, dalambert@nehgs.org

Nearly 250 years ago, America declared its independence from the British Empire, changing the course of history. While many took up the cause and supported the revolution, others remained loyal to the British government—turning friends into foes and pitting neighbor against neighbor. In this online lecture, Chief Genealogist David Allen Lambert will discuss how to research your colonial ancestors and determine if—and how—they may have served the cause of the American Revolution.

The rich collections of records for soldiers and patriots of the Revolutionary War have aided scholars for generations. It is the purpose of this lecture to introduce and review these resources in researching the life of the veteran during the war and in their post-war life.

Basic Steps of Military Research

- Why research a veteran?
- How old was your veteran?
 - Ages not listed, not town given
 - Age range of the typical soldier, 18 to 35
 - Average birth year 1735-1760
 - Extremes early 1700s and later 1760s

Patriotic Service

- Acts of Patriotic Service
 - These acts cannot be self-serving
 - Service could only be rendered to the Patriots
 - This can be one act or a series of actions demonstrating loyalty to the American cause
- Examples of Patriotic Service
 - Signing oaths of allegiance to the new government
 - Rendering aid to wounded (nurses and doctors)
 - Furnishing supplies
 - Lending money or munitions
 - Ministers giving patriotic sermons
 - Paying supply taxes
 - Defenders of forts and stations
 - Members of Continental Congress, State Conventions and Assemblies

- Membership in committees during the war (ex. Committees of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety)
- Boston Tea Party participants
- The Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) accepts the following examples of patriotic service: <https://www.dar.org/national-society/accepted-revolutionary-war-service>
- The Sons of the American Revolution (SAR) accepts the following examples of patriotic service: <https://www.sar.org/how-to-apply/>

- Patriotic Sermons
 - Religion provided a moral sanction for opposing British rule
 - Ministers of the Church of England are not eligible – they swore an oath to support the King

- Oaths of Allegiance
 - 18th-century oaths were seen as "sworn promises"
 - Most colonies required an oath of allegiance by free males over the minimum age (varied from over 16 to 21 years)
 - Prisoners of war and enslaved persons were exempt from taking an oath of allegiance.
 - Women were not required to take an oath of allegiance unless required in other circumstances (ex. in New York to file a lawsuit)
 - Some colonies allowed Quakers to affirm allegiance (Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, New York, Rhode Island, Vermont)

- Three Elements of Oath of Allegiance
 - Renouncing allegiance to the King of England
 - Promise of allegiance to the state as an independent state
 - Commitment to reveal treasons and conspiracies against any of the states

- Oaths of Allegiance (Minimum Age Requirements)
 - Connecticut – Office holders and freemen (over 21)
 - Delaware – White males over 21
 - Georgia – All men over 16
 - Maryland – Free males over 18
 - North Carolina – Free males over 16
 - Pennsylvania – White males over 18
 - Rhode Island – Men above 21
 - South Carolina – Free males over 16
 - Vermont – Freemen (over 21)
 - Virginia – Free born males over 16 (except indentured servants)

- Supply Taxes

- Congress has no authority to levy taxes. Money and supplies were requested from the states.
- Taxes went towards raising supplies, paying troops, building ships, providing clothing, raising bounty money, providing relief for families of soldiers in service.
- The laws that were passed to levy taxes must state in the statute that they were addressing a request of the Continental Congress and/or to support the war or achieve independence.
- Each state has different tax assessments that were levied. Consult the DAR and SAR guides on which taxes count for patriotic service.
